XM provides clearer stations than ground base stations. Will XM ever be able to provide local "regionalize" service to every customer across this great nation. The answer is simple, "No," they simply do not have the bandwidth to provide such service without tremendous cost to them. It is so nice to travel from area to area and get the same stations. Also, the traffic and radio reports are great since I commute hour into work and my "radio" stations doesn't provide me with information until I am within the city limits, XM was the answer to my woes. I still switch from XM to FM, simply because XM can't tell me news at the local high school and probably never will. Ground base radio stations need to improve their service not attack services provided by others.
